

Green Action for November: Switch to Groundswell for Your Electric Supplier

November is the month when many households have the ability to select their supplier of electricity and energy source. The Meeting's Green Organizing/Action Team (GOAT) would like to recommend that you switch to Groundswell, a cooperative purchasing wind and solar energy. While wind and solar generated energy still costs more to purchase than that generated from conventional fossil fuels in most cases, the price is coming down and greater demand is likely to bring the price down further. One member of GOAT, already a 100% wind power generated family, saved $0.07 per kilowatt hour (kwh) by switching from Washington Gas and Electric to Groundswell. If you decide to switch, it is a very quick and easy process. For more information go to <http://groundswell.org> or speak with John McKusick, Gary Gillespie, or Polly Heninger of GOAT.
